COMMENCEMENT CELEBRATION
FOR THE CLASS OF 2024

A MESSAGE FROM Dean Frank

To the Class of 2024:

Congratulations on completing your Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree! You have worked very hard to reach this important milestone. Today you are joining the veterinary profession, and from this day forward, people will refer to you as “Doctor.”

As you look back, I hope you have many positive memories. You have completed this journey with your classmates, and it will be a bittersweet moment as you say goodbye and move on to the next phase of life. I hope you will join our new Alumni Council to stay connected with classmates and your alma mater. We encourage you to visit us whenever you are in the area. This is your veterinary college, and we welcome and value your help building our future.

Take time to thank your family and friends who are celebrating with you today; I know their support has contributed to your success, and I am sure they are very proud of you. I would also like to express appreciation to our faculty, staff, interns, and residents today, because every graduation represents the culmination of their hard work as educators.

On behalf of the MSU CVM faculty and staff, thank you for your many contributions to our community, and we wish you all the very best for the future.

Sincerely,

Nick Frank

COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE ANNUAL AWARDS

The Associate Deans' Award is among the highest awards given to a member of the graduating class. It is based on assessment of displayed qualities of character, professionalism, leadership, and the promise of a career of service in veterinary medicine. It is given to a graduating senior who is not entering private clinical practice.

ASSOCIATE DEANS' AWARD

Josie Gamble

This year's recipient of the Associate Deans' Award earned a Bachelor of Science in poultry medicine from Mississippi State University and gained valuable undergraduate experience working on projects, including the evaluation of washing procedures on eggs within commercial hatcheries and the effects of in ovo injected Bacillus subtilis probiotic serotypes on broiler hatchability and intestinal microflora. During her time as an undergraduate researcher, she earned the Don R. Sloan Undergraduate Research Award and was named the MSU College of Agriculture and Life Sciences Ambassador for Poultry Science.

While pursuing her DVM, our recipient served as a Merck Animal Health student representative and was heavily involved with CVM student organizations, including the American Association of Avian Pathologists; Small Ruminant, Swine, and Poultry Club; and Poultry Science Association, as well as Pawsibilities Veterinary Medicine Organization and Alpha Psi Veterinary Fraternity.

She also participated in a pilot study and dosage study in collaboration with MSU CVM and the Department of Poultry Science, evaluating injectable anesthesia in W-36 roosters undergoing cecectomy procedures for feedstuff digestibility assays. During this study, she was instrumental in helping with IACUC protocol development and extrapolation of anesthetic protocols and dosages from a variety of species to create an anesthetic protocol and dosage for avian species. As a result of her work, she was awarded the MSU Veterinary Research Initiative grant.

Josie Gamble is a conscientious, ethical, kind, intelligent, and driven individual. Following graduation, she is moving to Athens, Georgia, where she has been accepted into the University of Georgia Master's of Avian Medicine program.

Josie, you are destined to excel and become a leader in the poultry industry. Congratulations on receiving this year's MSU CVM Associate Deans' Award!

COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE ANNUAL AWARDS

The Dean's Pegasus Award is the highest award given to a member of the graduating class. It is based on the assessment of displayed qualities of character, professionalism, leadership, and the promise of a career of service to the profession as evidenced by service before and while in the MSU College of Veterinary Medicine.

DEAN'S PEGASUS AWARD

Ian Evans

The recipient of this year's Dean's Pegasus Award studied biomedical engineering at Mississippi State University and gained research experience in that field, as well as through a project that studied external fixation of fractures in dogs prior to entering the CVM. He also helped analyze bone samples for osteochondral xenograft research. In addition, this individual spent time at multiple veterinary practices, including an orthopedic specialty surgical practice and several university lab animal departments.

While pursuing his DVM, he served as an Early Entry Program mentor and an Envoy, as well as participated in numerous clubs and organizations, including SAVMA, Surgery Club, and the Student Chapter of the American College of Veterinary Pathologists.

This year's recipient has shown a strong commitment to leadership and service and has been pivotal in arranging volunteers for many service events during his time at MSU. He served as an MSU Maroon Volunteer Center site leader, MSU CVM Service Day coordinator, and VetAspire coordinator, and he personally arranged the building of the very popular disc golf course at the Wise Center.

This individual was also a Summer Research Scholar, helping to analyze epidemiologic and histologic data from a devastating unusual mortality event in dolphins associated with freshwater incursion into the Gulf of Mexico. He also participated in a recently published study analyzing novel methods to process teeth collected from stranded dolphins to determine their age. In addition, he served as an Animal Health Center emergency surgery technician.

Ian Evans is an incredible student and an enthusiastic, kind, humble, and compassionate individual with an outstanding work ethic and an equally strong desire to serve others and give back to the community. His communication skills are topnotch; he has a clever sense of humor, and he is a joy to all around him. Ian is dedicated to lifelong learning and will continue to expand his knowledge and expertise as a rotating small animal intern at MSU CVM.

Ian, you have made a lasting mark on our college, and we know that you will do the same wherever you go in the years to come. Congratulations on receiving the 2024 Dean's Pegasus Award!
